January 28 Graduation Will Have Customary Activities

Seniors being graduated this January will take part in ceremonies closely resembling normal commencement activities in June.

The mid-year graduation will be held at 10 a. m., Saturday, Jan. 28, in the University Auditorium.

Vance Rogers, president of Nebraska Wesleyan University, is slated to deliver the commencement address.

Caps and gowns must be ordered from the Bookstore not later than Monday, Jan. 9. There is no rental fee but the graduation fee receipt must be presented. The traditional tassel from the cap may be purchased for thirty-five cents.

Unless excused for good reasons, all candidates for bachelor's degrees, and/or master's degrees are required to attend exercises.

Trickett to History, Athletic Meetings

Dr. A. Stanley Trickett, head of the history department, represented OU at the 75th annual American Historical meeting in New York.

As chairman of the faculty athletic committee of OU, Dr. Trickett will also attend the 55th annual National College Athletic Association Conference in Pittsburgh, Jan. 8-11.

Delta Sigma Pi Tours IBM System at UP

Members of Delta Sigma Pi, business fraternity, toured the Union Pacific IBM System at the UP main building over Christmas vacation.

Delta Sigma Pi will have a business meeting this afternoon in the Student Center to prepare for second semester rush parties and make plans for the Rose Dance when they will name the Rose of Delta Sig.

Marston Gets Health Office

Professor in the Engineering Department, Anson D. Marston, has taken the oath of office to be an alternate on the Nebraska State Board of Health in case of a major disaster.

By state law, initiated last November, a public office holder must appoint an alternate to his post in case he himself is incapacitated during an emergency.

Professor Marston pointed out that, " . . . most people think that the Board of Health is comprised of doctors, but in reality there are other professional men, one of which must be a recognized civil engineer.

"I'll assume office only in case of a major disaster such as an atomic attack," the professor said, "but I hope I'll never have to."

He went on to say, "If there is an attack, there will be many engineering problems such as pollution of water from atomic fallout and contamination from dead bodies. Other problems that would need recognition are drainage, waste and sewage."

Official Notices

The Nebraska Psychiatric Institute, 602 S. 44th Ave., needs made students age 18-23 to participate in a psychological experiment.

It will take one hour, and is a non-stressful experiment in the general area of perception. It is non-personal, and no shock is involved. The pay is $3.

Interested men should contact Dr. A. Wolpin at 556-6211, ext. 423 or Dr. Milgram, ext. 319, for an appointment.

Cafeteria Now Open Earlier

The latest move in the drive to clean up the Ouampi Room "coffee litter" was the opening of the Student Center cafeteria for coffee drinkers.

The opening of the cafeteria between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 10:20 p.m. will also facilitate faculty members, since the faculty dining rooms will be closed during coffee hours.

This will allow more opportunity for students and teachers to get together "in a more relaxed atmosphere," Dean Curt Siemers said.

Many tables and chairs have been removed from the Ouampi room he said, to allow wider aisles.

"This will enable janitors to clean the room with greater efficiency and relieve the congestion during the coffee rush. Although this limits the seating capacity of the Ouampi Room, the new cafeteria coffee facilities will easily handle any overflow," he concluded.

SAM to Enroll New Members

Members of the Society for the Advancement of Management heard Martin Kolnick of the Department of Internal Revenue speak on tax deductions available to college students at their meeting Wednesday morning.

SAM will have a table set up in the Student Center Jan. 9 to sign up new members for the second semester. The organization is opening membership to students in other colleges.

There will be a SAM meeting this morning in Room 301 of the Student Center to have pictures taken for the Tomahawk.

Bail Hopeful on Expansion Of South Entrance to OU

There may be relief in sight for the 70 percent of the OU students who now enter the campus via Elmwood Park, according to President Milo Ball.

CAE Registration Offers Two Times

New and former students wishing to sign up for College of Adult Education classes have two registration periods.

They can pre-register Monday through Friday, 8-4 p.m. and 5:30-8 p.m.; and on Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 12 noon. This schedule continues until Feb. 21.

Regular registration will be from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m., Feb. 3 and 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Saturday, Feb. 4.

'University Nights' Plan Tele-lectures

Four Tele-lectures will be included in the "University Nights" schedule for next semester, Michel Beilis, College of Adult Education, announced Tuesday.

Harry Golden, author and humorist, will make his second OU visit via telephone mechanisms.

Walter Gutman, financial analyst; Allen Drury, best-selling author, and Mario Pei, a noted linguist, also will be featured in this new method of personal contact developed by Bell Telephone Co.

Other programs scheduled for the series are discussions of history, philosophy, urban re-development, economics and world affairs.

The first program, an interpretation of the current Broadway season by Dr. Edwin Clark, head of the University Theater, will be held Feb. 3 from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Conference Center Auditorium.

Registration for the series is now being taken at the CAE office. There is a fee of $7.

Group to Discuss College Athletics

President Milo Ball will be off campus next week attending two conferences, one of which deals with athletics.

He will meet with the advisory committee of the NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics) Monday and Tuesday; and the Association of American Colleges Wednesday and Thursday.

The NAIA group will discuss the objectives of the athletic program in universities, and ways of financing it.

CAE Moves South

The College of Adult Education plans to go to high school next semester, according to Dean Donald Woods.

Two college credit courses, Math 111A, and Education 207, will be offered next semester at South High School through the cooperation of the Omaha Board of Education.

Registration for the courses will be held concurrently with CAE night class registration.

CAE Coffee Break Shortened to 10 Min.

The coffee break for the regular CAE three semester-hour-lecture class has been changed from 25 minutes to 10 minutes.

The new procedure means that classes will meet a total of 50 minutes for each hour of credit and should be concluded by 9:40 instead of 9:55.

The Rev. George Stevenson of St. John's Greek Orthodox Church will be guest speaker at the Canterbury Club meeting Sunday. He will speak on the Greek Orthodox Church.

The business meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

One Wonders What The Score Really Is

By Ken Zimmerman

I see that the city, gifted with foresight, has sandbagged the campus against possible spring flooding.

Or isn't that what they're for?

Someone once said that Dodge Street traffic had reached the "intolerable" stage because of left turns into OU.

"Something must be done," was the cry.

So off goes the traffic light, out come the radical plans and up goes the barricade.

Still More Lights

Theoretically, all should now be well. Swift-moving autos should now be zipping to their destinations unimpeded.

Not so, however. There's a signal and left-turn light still blinking at Elmwood Road.

At Seventieth Street you stop for a red light while a few cars trundle onto Dodge from the Playhouse. Then you inch up to the necessary light at Seventy-second Street—and wait again.

Now take your foot off the brake and motor over to Seventy-fourth, or, more correctly, roll across the intersection and join that line of cars backed up from the red light at, coincidentally, the entrance to the Crossroads Shopping Center.

Now Another One

Now if you're lucky you'll catch a green signal at Seventy-eighth and you figure you're on your way.

Wrong again! There's a new addition out there. Seems as though the Swanson Building occupants have been having a little trouble getting in and out of the place. Perhaps a few cars were backing up from the Eighty-fourth Street turn-off.

But did anyone suggest dropping a load of sandbags and "sealing off the trouble spot?"

Not quite! It's much simpler to dole out another traffic light and stop all cars every 20 or 30 seconds.

Extra Influence?

All this adds up to one obvious question. What's the difference between the "intolerable" situation created by the University of Omaha and the apparent tolerable ones created farther west?

Can it be that a commercial influence has been exerted upon our city planners?

Regardless of the answer there's a double standard being applied and OU is getting the short end of it.

I'm all in favor of progress and will go along with whatever would ease the problems of driving students.

I took someone's word that the steps taken were in the best interest, that every little bit counts.

Where Is Problem?

But an inconsistency has developed which prompts a disbelief in the validity of the entire project.

If someone downtown thinks OU stymied traffic on Dodge, how can he fail to recognize an even greater problem out west?

How can the traffic light at OU be branded as a source of congestion while others—at Sixty-eighth, Seventieth, Seventy-fourth, Seventy-eighth and Eighty-fourth Streets—are condoned?

We at the University have, I feel, co-operated fully in this so-called improvement program but it begins to look as though someone else is not doing his part.

Group Increases Size

Omaha University folk dancers will meet for the third time at 8:30 this evening.

The Folk Dance Club, which has increased in size at both of the preceding meets, may need expanded facilities, Assistant Dean of Student Personnel Curt Siemers said.

They will use rooms 312 A-B tonight.

Omaha U Freshman Emerges From Dark Night to Bright Life

By Carol Selbert

Ah, that night of all dark nights—and then . . .

OU freshman Mary Beth was born. To Lois and Emmet Meyers this fat and bouncing girl was the joy of their life. Little did they know then that their "wee kitty one" would one day become a junk collector—she hoards everything from kindergarten drawings to the eyeballs of a dissected frog—and a campaigner against motherhood (the bossy, overbearing kind) and against brotherhood (the small, snoopy kind).

One day while taking a bath, little Mary Beth let the tub run over and as she was floating around, she discovered she had a natural talent for swimming. Since that day Mary Beth has won several swimming awards. She teaches swimming at the Jewish Community Center.

Another time, during the Superman craze era, Mary Beth was flying from her porch when she tore her cape on the morning glory trestle. She ran to cry to her mother, but her mother could not be found. In panic, she decided to patch it herself. She claims she had the most colorful cape in the neighborhood.

But with her patchworked cape developed Mary Beth's love for sewing. She has won many sewing prizes. She even won a red ribbon at the State Fair for one of her creations.

As a child, Mary Beth developed a love for camping. Every year the "Meyers Crew" goes camping across the country. She has been in all parts of the West and to several eastern campsites.

She laughingly recalls the funny incidents which have happened to her. Once near Yellowstone National Park Mary Beth rose early to light the camp stove. As she was doing so, she felt something brush against her leg. She looked down and saw a skunk.

She said she was lucky because it didn't "squirt out" anything. "Besides," she added, "I ran before it had a chance."

Her mother quickly put a stop to that career when another mother phoned to say that her baby was missing and she had seen Mary Beth pushing a baby carriage and just wondered . . . you can guess what happened!

At one time Mary Beth wanted to be a Spanish dancer. Her decision was made right after she had drunk a tequila sour. She said, "It tasted like lemonade; it just didn't have the same effect!" As the drink wore off, so did her desire to become a Spanish dancer.

It was in Blessed Sacrament Grade School that Mary Beth found her true vocational ambition. She became interested in writing and worked on the school paper. As a freshman and sophomore at Holy Name High School she also worked on the paper. When she transferred to North High, she continued with her journalism. In her senior year she wrote several stories, "mostly features," for the paper. She earned the Quill and Scroll pin for her outstanding work.

At Omaha University she is (naturally) majoring in journalism. She hopes someday to be a news reporter since it would be "more interesting than writing the 'baloney' on the society page." Anyway, her journalism education will "help her make up her shopping lists when she gets married."

Author's Note: Though you, dear reader, may think that some of the things said are quite ridiculous, I must remind you—THIS IS A TRUE STORY! Ridiculousness is just part of Mary Beth's personality. The zany things she says and does are what make Mary Beth Meyers so well-liked by all who know her.

Japanese Linguist Winds Up Expensive Education at OU

By Earl K. Buchan

Army paratrooper and Japanese linguist Major James Freestone is studying at Omaha University to complete a $60,000 education enroute to South Viet Nam.

Major Freestone was born in 1921 and joined the 45th Division National Guard while still a sophomore in high school. This guard was called to active duty in 1940, a few months after Freestone had graduated from high school.

An Army paratrooper since 1943, Jim entered the fighting in World War II during the drive for Rome. He parachuted into Southern France and served as a forward observer directing artillery fire on enemy strong points holding up the lead elements of United States forces moving north through France.

After World War II Major Freestone returned to civilian life for one year, but soon accepted an appointment with the Regular Army and a three tour in the 82nd Airborne Division.

During the years 1949-1951, Major Freestone lived in Japan where he was a civil censorship officer and worked with the Japanese to insure adherence of the radio and press to the "occupation press code." A code that was favorable to United States goals and occupation forces.

He was later transferred to the Counter Intelligence Corps to consolidate reports and make appropriate recommendations to U.S. authorities regarding the Hiroshima District.

In 1951 Major Freestone was one of six officers chosen to study the area and language of the Far East for four years and then serve as a specialist in that area for three years.

He studied subjects on the Far

English Major Is Fire Fighter

By Melvin Moore

Fire trucks and college text books are unrelated items. But to Jerry L. Powell, 21, these two things are brought together in a strange but agreeable situation.

Jerry, an English major at Omaha University is tall, but solidly built. His short cropped black hair and casual dress give him the appearance of a typical college man, and in a certain sense, he is.

Off campus, he dons the uniform of a fire fighter at an Atlas missile base near Missouri Valley, Ia., which is Powell's home. He works 40 hours a week.

How did he get the job? Well, a few minutes with Jerry answered this and other questions.

Jerry reminds you of the kind of person who has all the luck in the world, plenty of friends and takes it all for granted.

With a rare wit and satirical sense of humor he explained that after he was released from the Army ("After I made corporal they discharged me for being drunk with power.") he heard they needed firemen and applied. "During the interview, I dazzled 'em with my magnetic personality," he said.

"I suppose I can best be described as one of America's angry young men working my way through college," says Powell. He has a Jack Benny style of conversation and it is next to impossible to discern whether he is serious or not.

Sometimes a quick glance and a sly one-sided smile from Jerry will let you know he's pulling your leg. Other times, he'll just leave you wondering.

Recently, Powell assisted in fighting a multi-million dollar fire at a grain elevator in Missouri Valley along with many volunteer fire fighting units from nearby communities. According to some of Jerry's co-workers, it was a cold night and the fire was very hard to control.

Nerves were tense and the firemen were tired, at a time when Powell announced loudly to everyone in particular—"If ya want a fire put out right, ya gotta call in us professionals. I never did trust all these unpaid, untrained volunteer firemen. If there's anything us pros can't stand, it's a volunteer. Surprisingly, this eased tensions among the tired firemen and brought on an onslaught of humorous ribbing from the various firemen.

After completion of college Jerry's plans aren't definite, but after talking to him, one can't help but have the feeling that his future can be nothing but exciting.

Loss of Chairs Creates Game

There's a new game in the Ouampi Room this week. It's called "snatch the chair" and is enjoyed by hundreds of students who crowd the snack room for coffee breaks and meals.

Nearly every student who has entered the room this week has been involved in the recreation in one form or another.

The game's rules were formed as a result of chairs being moved from the Ouampi Room to encourage students to frequent the cafeteria, which is now open all day.

By the time chairs are switched from one table to another, some tables are left without any chairs. Before the removal of the chairs it was difficult to always find seating accommodations, now chances are very slim.

The game works like this: Two or three friends enter together. If they're fortunate they'll find a table with a vacant chair or two. From there on, the object of the game is to snatch a chair from another table. This recreation continues in one vicious circle.

It seems that within the next few days students will learn of the opening of the cafeteria during coffee time, and many will change their habits and eat there. The cafeteria will offer to many, a coffee time, under a more refined atmosphere where students can meet with teachers for discussions.

Students who choose the cafeteria will probably do so because they prefer the atmosphere, not because of the subtle hint made by the removal of chairs from the Ouampi Room.

It is hoped, however, that if chairs aren't replaced, that a few students will change their coffee habits, because the "snatching game" gets too complicated when so many participate in it.

Frat Pledges Elvis

There's a new associate member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity at Arkansas State College. The new member of Beta Psi chapter is a well-known teen-age singing idol just back from West Germany where he drove tanks as a sergeant in the US Army. Who's this TEKE? Sgt. Elvis Presley.

'Silver Mist' Theme for Chi Omega Dinner Dance

"Silver Mist" was the theme for the annual Chi Omega Dinner Dance Dec. 21 at 7 p.m. at the Blackstone Hotel Ballroom.

The theme of the event was carried through with pink and silver decorations, accented by sprays of evergreens.

Guests at the dinner dance were Dr. and Mrs. Milo Bail, Dean and Mrs. Donald Pflasterer, Dean Elizabeth Hill and the Chi Omega sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. John Gustafson, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, Miss Mildred Hollingsworth, Mrs. Jody Helme and Miss Margaret Killian.

Music for the dance was provided by the Carl Jay Band.

Other entertainment included

Sororities Carol At UP Station

The Omaha University sororities joined in the Christmas spirit Dec. 18 with a combined caroling party and dance.

All the sororities met at the Union Pacific Station at 6:30 and sang several Christmas songs for people there.

The carolers were divided into three smaller groups and caroled at the homes of the OU faculty and Board of Regents until 9 p.m.

Members of the OU fraternities attended the dance in the Student Center Ballroom at 10 p.m.

The event was sponsored by Junior Panhellenic Council.

Diane Morey, who played a medley of Christmas carols on the marimba, and Delores Brewer, Donna Hoffman and Judy Moe, who sang three selections.

The favors presented by the Chi O's to their dates were 12-inch clear glass mugs with the Chi Omega crest inscribed in the glass.

The dinner-dance committee, headed by Jackie Brady and Patry McShane, included Julie Klingforth, Judy Houk, Joan Mencke, Mona McGrath and Judy Boner.

14 ROTC Cadets Are Promoted

Fourteen members of the 470th AF-ROTC Cadet Group received promotions over the holiday recess.

Robert L. Hohman and Michael Richardson became first lieutenants.

Promoted to technical sergeants are John Cady, Thomas Bogacz and Aaron Peterson.

Delmer Britton and Robert Burdette are new staff sergeants.

Airman first class promotions go to Gordon Gould, Robert Hill, John Kaffenberger and James Wilmot.

James Abshier, Richard Jaworski and Jeffrey Ratliff were promoted to airmen second class.

The promotions were announced by Cadet Major Robert Everett, administrative officer.

Party, Breakfast For Alpha Xi's

Alpha Xi Delta scheduled two parties for actives and pledges over the Christmas vacation.

Pledge paddles in every shape from a cat to a giant quill were presented to active "mothers" by their pledge "daughters" at Alpha Xi's annual Christmas party Dec. 21.

The event was held at the home of an active, Pledge Trainer Carolyn Richmond, and her sister Colleen, who is pledge president.

Come-As-You-Are Breakfast

A "turn-out" breakfast for Alpha Xi Delta actives and pledges was held at 6:30 a.m., Dec. 29, at Barb Henry's home.

The breakfast was a "surprise" on the pledge class who annually gives their active chapter a breakfast. This year the actives decided to take over the event.

Only five actives knew the date and place of the breakfast.

Grassman Speaks To OU Chemists

William Grassman, chief chemist of the Future Foam Division of the Charles Schneider Company, will be guest speaker for the meeting of the Student Affiliates of the American Chemical Society Jan. 10 in the Student Center.

Mr. Grassman will give demonstrations and speak on the mechanism and uses of polyurethane foam in modern industry.

The meeting will be at 4 p.m. in Room 302. Any students interested are invited to attend the meeting.

Mystery Santas Are Revealed At All-School Xmas Party

By Pam Stronberg

Rotund and jolly they were, dressed in their red and white suits and bedecked with whiskers, but they could not outsmart OU students.

At the Student Council's All-School Christmas party Friday, December 16, students, after much deliberation and wild guessing, named faculty member Sylvester Williams and student Phil Fischer as the mysterious "Mr. Santas."

Prizes given for the correct identifications of St. Nick were a 1961 Cadillac (miniature model) and a trip to Bermuda—the trip at the winner's expense with bright polka-dotted bermudas for the trip from the Student Council.

The party began at 9:30 p.m.

Social Events End Until After Finals

Social events are at a stand still at Omaha University until after final examinations.

Alpha Xi Delta will have its annual all-Greek Devil Dance on Jan. 31. An all-Greek vote will elect the 1961 King Satan from the representatives of the fraternities.

The Eddie Haddad Orchestra will play for the 9:12 p.m. dance in the Student Center Ballroom.

The Independent Students Association will sponsor an all-school dance Feb. 3 in the ballroom of the Student Center.

after the O.U.-Nebraska Wesleyan basketball game. Students danced in the Union ballroom to the Nite Beats Combo.

During the intermission, Reed Mencke and Chuck Colvin led the crowd in singing Christmas Carols and Mr. Williams demonstrated his ability as a drummer and pianist.

Refreshments were served by the Student Council.

Pie Wins Freshman OU Scholarship

By Lorraine Dolinsky

A pie can take you to college—such is the case with Diane Hansen, 18, of Bellevue, an Omaha University freshman.

Two years ago Diane and her brother, Brian, 17, entered the Metropolitan Utilities District teenage pie baking contest. They were one of five teams representing the Omaha high schools and won first prize.

The winning pie was a French Cream with bread crumb crust. Diane said: "Part of the recipe was from a cook book; the other part from my head."

Wherever it came from, it won the brother-sister team of a $200 scholarship.

Diane is using her half of the scholarship this year at O.U. Brian will use his next fall, after graduation from Bellevue High School in June.

Majoring in home economics, Diane plans to become a high school home economics teacher. Diane said she has always been interested in cooking and likes to experiment with various fruits. She also enjoys making "weird salads."

Brian became interested in the culinary arts through the Boy Scouts where he was "chef" for several camporees."

One of the judges for the 1958 contest was Audrey Boyer, former O.U. home economics instructor. Miss Boyer said at the time: "The originality of the pie, especially the bread crumb crust was what won the contest for them."

Only OU Letters

The "O" Club is embarking on a campaign to prevent the wearing of high school and other college letter sweaters and jackets on the Omaha U campus.

Somewhere in the long list of the University's laws and by-laws is a rule that says, "no sports letters from any other high school, college or university shall be worn on the OU campus."

All of the OU coaches tell their players about the law, and consequently those out for sports know about the law. The real problem seems to be with those students who are not out for sports at OU, but still wear letter sweaters and jackets earned elsewhere!

As yet, no solution to the problem has been reached, but plans by the "O" Club call for something to be done about the problem in the near future. They are reminding everyone wearing a letter than OU's that they are violating a school law.

P. S.: Publicity Seekers
Omaha University organizations that would like to have society news in the Gateway should bring the information to the Gateway Office, Room 116 in the Applied Arts Building, by Tuesday morning of each week.

Theatre Group to Meet

There will be a University Players Organizational meeting Friday, Jan. 13, at 3:30 in the Auditorium.

Any student with an interest in the theater is invited to attend.

Indian Five Faces Emporia, CU Next

Omaha University basketballers, recovering from nine straight setbacks, jump from the frying pan into the fire as they tackle Central Intercollegiate Conference runner-up Emporia State tonight and an always powerful Creighton University five Monday.

Emporia, who finished with a 7-3 record in conference play last season thumped the Indians twice last year. Creighton also held two decisive wins over the Indians. The Omahans, attempting to snap the long losing streak, will be out to avenge a 101-56 loss handed them by the Emporians in their second meeting last season.

The Indians will meet cross-town rival Creighton at the Civic Auditorium at 8 p.m.

The Bluejays, who have gone big time in the cage sport, have played Iowa, Illinois and Purdue in the Big Ten, Big Eight contender Colorado and North Carolina University. North Carolina was ranked in the nation's top ten earlier this season.

Derra Hits 16

WRA Members Invade Range

All women in WRA, Women's Recreation Association, are invited to try their skill on the rifle range from January 5-13, during the Rifle Club Tournament.

Fifteen rounds of ammunition will be given to each girl for practice after which time she must designate to officials her official tournament target.

Winners of the tournament will be selected from top scores on the tournament target. All shooting will be done from the prone position.

Interested WRA members are urged to report to the rifle range from 7:30-10:30 on Thursdays, from 9:30-10:30 on Monday, and from 8-10:30 on Tuesday.

Clarence "Sonny" Means is in his second year as head coach at Omaha University.

Russ Gorman, chairman of the Men's Physical Education Department, is president-elect of the Nebraska Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

ra, Wendell Wiksell and Joe Neuberger hit 16, 12 and 10 points respectively, supplying most of the power in the Indian attack. Junior forward Gary Wentworth hit eight quick points in the first half but was shut out in the second.

The Tribe trailed the Plainsmen by three at half time but were unable to match the second period Wesleyan attack.

Ball Control Falls

In the Holiday Tournament held at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium, Omaha University pushed rugged Colorado College in the opening game before losing 74-66.

Trailing 42-33 at the half, the Indians put on a determined bid to overtake the Coloradoans the second half pulling within two points of the eventual tourney victor before a ball control maneuver backfired. The Coloradoans then pulled away to wrap up the victory.

Veterans Bruce Hunter and Joe Neuberger paced the Tribe attack with 15 points each. Bill Derra added 10.

Nebraska Wesleyan, tourney host, dropped Culver-Stockton in the night cap.

Wesleyan Dumped

In the battle for third place the Indians dropped a 75-59 decision to Culver-Stockton while Colorado College downed Wesleyan for the tourney crown.

Again the Omahans were unable to cope with the opponent's second half surge being outscored 45-29. The teams were tied at 30 all at intermission.

Rookies Bill Derra and Ed Woodward hit 19 and 10 points respectively to bolster the Indian attack.

.362 from Field

Through the first nine games the basketballers compiled a .350 field goal percentage and a .571 percentage from the free throw line. Their opponents, however, hit .421 from the field and a good .720 from the free throw line.

The Indians hauled down 312 rebounds in the first nine games compared with 360 for opponents.

Joe Neuberger continued to lead OU scorers through the first nine contests hitting 11.2 points per game average.

Will Students Pay?

Of the 776 signers of the petition to keep sports on campus, President Bail wants to know how many would be willing to pay an additional athletic fee of three to five dollars.

"Students now pay $3 and don't support them," he said.

Virgil Yelkin, OU Athletic Director and baseball coach, was a member of the Kansas City Star's All Big Six football team.

OU Wrestlers Take Opener

University of Omaha athletic fans finally were celebrating a triumph Saturday night.

The Indians opened their wrestling season with a victory over Graceland, Northwest Missouri of Maryville and North Dakota State.

Graceland Second

The Indians finished with 43 points to 32 for Graceland. Northwest Missouri scored 27 and North Dakota State nine.

The Indians won four of the title matches.

Louis Miloni, Bob Tallman and George Crenshaw lived up to expectations with victories. Miloni had his most trouble in the afternoon. He posted a 2-0 decision over Ralph Messerli, Maryville star from Council Bluffs.

Howard Stars

Jim Howard was the hero of Omaha fans. A substitute at 157 pounds for injured Nick Chuburis he pinned Jim Fylie of the Missouri school and decisioned Graceland's Dave Twilliger.

The Indians victorious in the opening quadrangular will be at Northwest Missouri tonight and at William Jewell on Saturday night.

Their next home match is against Fort Hays State on January 13.

Basketball

Zeke Moe Joes are continuing their winning ways in intramural basketball as they did in football.

They are perched atop League One with a five win, no loss record. The Zekes have three games left on their schedule which ends January 19.

Theta Chi is the closest to Zekes with five wins and one loss. Their loss was to the Zekes earlier in the season.

Pi Kaps Third

Pi Kaps are third with four wins and one loss.

League Two is led by the Bootstrappers who also have a five-one record. Their closest contender is the Bwana's who have won four and lost one.
